RAP Analytical Research and Training Center, Nashik, established in 2012 an organization which is devoted to develop candidate's analytical, clinical, technical and industrial skills while they run towards their successful career in the field for Pharmaceutical, Chemical, Clinical, Biological, Biotechnological, Microbiological, Petrochemical, now a days IT and many more..

Training Courses

Hands-on Training on Analytical Instruments

HPLC | GC | UV-VIS | Disso | DT | Friability

- Hands on Training
- Standard operating procedure
- Theory Lectures
- Qualitative & Quantitative Analysis
- Variable Parameters
- Troubleshooting
- Duration: 1 month
- Objective exam assessment
- Certificate on completion
- Private staying facility
- Industrial Documentation
- Interview assistance

Medical Coding

CPC Certification Training

- ICD
- HCPCS with sample model papers
- Duration: 3 months (Weekends)
- CPT
- Interview assistance
- Online / Offline

Academic-Industrial Training

- Instrument's demonstration
- Highlights on quality control
- Duration: 1 month

Introduction to Computational Drug Design

Co-Organised by Schrödinger and Pharmacy Council of India

Theory - Demo - Hands-on

Inauguration

Date: 21st Sep 2020 ~ Time: 10 AM

Prof. B Suresh, President, Pharmacy Council of India

Computational molecular modeling tools are changing the world of drug design and formulation development. The online "Introduction to Computational Drug Design" webinar series will demonstrate how industry-leading computational molecular modeling tools are used to aid in drug design and formulation development; and to incorporate these tools into your curriculum and research projects.

This will be an exceptional value addition to your professional development in the form of new skill enhancement. The online webinar series will provide basic theoretical and practical applications of computational modeling using active learning strategies.

The programme is broken into three phases:

- I. Lectures concentrated on the theory and basics
- II. Demonstration of Schrödinger modeling tools
- III. Hands-on experience with the Schrödinger software

Eligible Participants: Undergraduates (3rd and Final Year Students); Post Graduates; Research Scholars; Faculty Members/Academicians

Title of course: Introduction to Computational Drug Design

Course G - Syllabus with course outcomes

Duration: 2020-21 (21/09/2020 to 23/10/2020) [one month (online)]

Course Coordinator: Schrödinger and PCI

SYLLABUS

- Introduction to computer-aided drug design
- Target structure understanding
- Ligand library for simulation
- Preparing protein and ligand for simulation
- Identifying ligand binding site
- Theory, principles, methods of molecular docking
- Virtual screening to prioritizing the molecules
- Need for flexible docking and covalent docking
- Molecular dynamics simulations theory and analysis
- When the target protein structure is not there?
- Ligand-based drug design: QSAR approach
- Pharmacophore modeling
- Quantum Mechanics for drug design
- Computational biologics design and formulation design
- Demonstration of Schrödinger modeling tools
- Hands-on experience with the Schrödinger software

COURSE OUTCOMES

The course is value addition to professional development in the form that

- demonstrate how industry-leading computational molecular modeling tools are used to aid in drug design and formulation development
- incorporate these tools into curriculum and research projects
- provide basic theoretical and practical applications of computational modeling using active learning strategies
