PELLET

Introduction to pellet

In the pharmaceutical industry, pellets are simple small free-flowing spherical particles formed by agglomeration of fine powder or granules, which can be given in the form of tablets and capsules for various disease conditions, although tablets are more convenient than capsules. The size range of pellet size is of 0.5-2.0 mm.

Advantages of pellets

- Pellets show excellent flowing properties, due to its elegance.
- Extrusion Spheronization technique gives uniformity of dose with excellent accuracy.
- Pellets provide safety by preventing dust formation which can cause health issues because of fine powders due to its dust explosives.
- The product appearance is improved.
- The efficacy of product is improved due to the safety of the active ingredient.

- Disadvantages of pellets
- Sometimes pellets are too rigid in nature which is difficult to compress as a tablet, therefore have to be encapsulated into a capsule.
- The process of pelletization is a highly sophisticated method because specialized equipments are used.
- The cost of manufacturing is high.
- It involves number of formulation variables and process variables which leaves the manufacturing process complicated.

Pelletization technique:

Formulation manufacturer by Organization

• Micropellet

Definition: SP base of sugar spheres and microcrystalline spheres coated with cationic polymers.

Application :

- Suitable for very low / high dosage forms and for drugs with a low therapeutic margin.
- Fillers for Dispersible Tablets.
- Used as cores to be coated in the manufacture of highly hygroscopic / soluble drugs / unstable drug.
- Using Micropellet - Sp products are interesting into a transfer strategy of capsule with Pellets to tablets.

- NONPAREILS PELLETS Micropellet – Cores for Controlled – Release Formulations

Definition :

- Micropellet – contains not more than 92 percent of sucrose. Calculated on the dried basis. The dried basis. The remainder consists of corn starch as per the European Pharmacopoeia.
- Compliance with Ph. Eur., USP/ NF and JP.
- Produced in accordance with the cGMP.

Application:

Used as cores to be coated in the manufacture of dry pharmaceutical forms especially for controlled release & specially formulations.

- Starch Pellet

- Starch or amyllum is a carbohydrate consisting of a large number of glucose units joined together by glycosidic bonds. This polysaccharide is produced by all green plants as an energy store. It is the most common carbohydrate in the human diet and is contained in large amounts in such staple foods as potatoes, wheat, maize (corn), rice, and cassava.
- Pure starch is a white, tasteless and odorless powder that is insoluble in cold water or alcohol. It consists of two types of molecules: the linear and helical amylose and the branched amylopectin. Depending on the plant, starch generally contains 20 to 25% amylose and 75 to 80% amylopectin. Glycogen, the glucose store of animals, is a more branched version of amylopectin.
- Starch is processed to produce many of the sugars in processed foods. Dissolving starch in warm water gives wheatpaste that can be used as a thickening, stiffening or gluing agent.

- Application:

Used as spherical seed cores for drug layering & film coating. Also used in manufacture of granules / beadlets with sustained / controlled release, taste masking & other special properties.

SUGAR Pellets Micropellet – Cores for Controlled – Release Formulations

Definition

Micropellet suger pellet contains not more than 92 percent of sucrose. Calculated on the dried basis. The dried basis. The remainder consists of corn starch as per the European Pharmacopoeia.

Documents handled in industry

- Standard operating procedures (SOP's)
Is a set of written instructions that document a routine or repetitive activity followed by an organization. In that SOP's of the equipments in the manufacturing process and SOP's of handing of equipments is handled.
- Batch manufacturing record (BMR)
The batch manufacturing record (BMR ) is the necessary document which tracing the complete cycle of manufacturing of a batch or lot .
The BMR was in the local language.
In the BMR there is written form of batch record during pellet manufacturing process.
- Distribution record
It is written document which describing the distribution of drug product .
This document includes; name and strength of the product, description of dosages form etc.

- Master formula record (MFR)

Master formula record is the master of all the documents in the industry.

It is used to document the specific information for each individual batch and it is important component of regulatory compliance and effective process control.

It contains all the information about the manufacturing process of pellets and micropellet.

It is reference of all the SOP's, BMR.

- Specifications:

A specifications is a quality standard.

It establishes the criteria to which a substance should confirm for the manufacture of product

It complies the list of tests, reference to analytical procedures and appropriate acceptance criteria for the test described.

Conclusion

In the end I am glad to tell you that training in MICROPELLET- PELLET MANUFACTUREER, AMBAD, MIDC NASHIK was an excellent and fabulous experience. During the training I actually learned about the Pharmaceutical company and above its working the theoretical knowledge is worth for getting a degree, and it is accessible in the book. We can only imagine about the thing we read, but practical life is always different and excellent one. During My training period, I had seen the various instruments and apparatus in the industry. The highly sophisticated instruments that work precisely must be operated with intense care for optimum use. We could acquire a lot of information regarding the latest instruments and their working procedures.

I was successfully able to complete my short venture of training. Lastly I hope that my training report fulfill the intended requirements.
